

I believe that it XM Satellite Radio, and all satellite radio services should have the rights and freedom to broadcast whatever they want, including local traffic and weather. I live in a rural area and often travel cross country through major cities, and it is impossible to remember which radio stations provide traffic and weather for those cities. By using XM's local traffic and weather I can plan my routes through each city for a timely route. I sincerely hope the FCC does not allow the NAB to bully its way into deciding what satellite radio decides to offer its paying customers.

Thank you.
